PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, Oct. 24, 1900.

EDITOR TIMES:

A. B. Marchant took a trip to Salt Lake valley this week.

Today we are having a rain storm, and it now does not fall before night I miss my goose.

George W. Young of Wanship, Dan Lambert of Kenes and J. J. Brown of Hoyterville were recent visitors in Provo.

Mrs. Rachel E. Miles, wife of Frank Miles, has been seriously ill for the past few days but is now on the road to recovery.

The weather has been somewhat damp during the past two weeks; snow and rain has prevailed in some considerable extent and the roads up this way are somewhat heavy.

The quarterly conference of the 22nd quorum of Seventies will be held in Wanship on Sunday, Oct. 28th. Members of the quorum are earnestly requested to be present.

G. A. Beck, who was seriously hurt some three weeks ago by an explosion of flash-light powder, is now progressing favorably, and will in a few days be all right and as well as ever.

No, we have not been asked to attend the wedding party; that will probably come later on. We live in hope if we die in despair. This is not a bid for an invitation but only to satisfy the curiosity.

Mrs. Lucinda Williams, wife of Henry B. Williams, has returned home from Salt Lake City, where she has been visiting for some weeks past. Henry is now looking much pleasanter than he did a few days ago, and no wonder, for we know how it is corrected.

The political pot is boiling over hereabouts and feelings are running high. More interest is being taken in this election than any previous one. The rallies of both parties have been well attended and the situation, as to which party will win, is rather doubtful, although the Democrats are very confident that their ticket will win out. Last week Fred T. McFerrin of Salt Lake and William

There are between twenty-five and thirty students from Summit county attending this institution. Some have been called to take the missionary course and are making rapid strides in that line, while others are taking up normal and commercial work. There is one or more from nearly every town in the county, and each place has just cause to be proud of its representative.

October 16th being the anniversary of the founding of the Academy, the day was celebrated in a proper manner. After considerable parading in the morning the students assembled in College Hall and listened to a very interesting and instructive program. Joseph P. Smith and Dr. Karl G. Maeser delivered lectures that will always be remembered by the listeners. The musical part of the program was a treat to all and convinced the visitors that the Academy's music department is second to none in the State.

A. C. Nelson, Republican nominee for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, visited the school last week. Prof. Nelson is a very influential man and a good speaker on educational subjects.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster and Mrs. Dr. Boynton visited with us Tuesday morning and spoke during the theological hour. Mrs. Foster is from Wanship, D. C., and is out stumping for the Republican party. She is a powerful speaker, and her lecture on "Character" made a deep impression on the students. Mrs. Boynton's remarks were very convincing. She is one of Cache county's prominent Republicans.

Last Friday Prof. Lund invited all the students who had ever played brass instruments to meet for the purpose of organizing a band. As a result sixteen young men responded, so the Academy will soon be blessed with all the concert bands that are capable of being made by a brass band. An orchestra has already been organized and in the near future will furnish music for the Academy dances.

TO THE DEAD.

A rich lady cured of her Deafness and Notices in the Head by Dr. Nicholson's Artificial Ear. Dr. Nicholson gave $10,000 to his institute, so that deaf people unable to procure the Ear Drum may have them free. Address No. 12163, The Nicholson Institute, 780, Eight Avenue, New York, U. S. A.

Sir William Preese read a most interesting paper before the British Association at the Bradford meeting, in which he stated that the first experiments in regard to wireless telephony were made in February, 1894, across Loch Ness, in the Highlands of Scotland. On that occasion trials were made to determine the laws which govern the transmission of the Morse signals by the electro-magnetic method of the wireless telegraph. Two parallel wires, well earthed, were taken one on each side of the lake, and arrangements were made by which the wires were systematically shortened with a view to ascertaining the minimum length necessary to record satisfactory signals. The trials show that it was possible to exchange speech across the loch at an average distance of 1.3 miles between the parallel wires, and the length of the wires themselves was reduced to 4 miles on each side of the water. The volume of telegraphic current was immensely greater than that of the telephonic current. Whenever through want of balance in a loop disturbance was evident, telephonic cross talk was also evident. Scientific American.

Maud Muller—the same old Maud once more—was still engaged in her old-time chore. But as she raked at the weathery hay, she was all tugged out in a scrumptious way, and all could see at that way they trod, that there was nothing special the matter with Maud. And she had such a sunny quick to her eye that the old judge stopped as he rode by; but when through the gate he felt would pass, Maud cried, "Say, Whiskers, keep off the grass."—Ex.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, Oct. 19, 1900.

The House Committee on Education and Labor, who have been considering the bill for some time past, will report on the stage this week by an extraordinary proceeding, nothing less than a personal interview with the President's diplomatic business. This bill, which would give the President the right to appoint and remove members of the diplomatic corps, has been introduced by the President.

Speaking of confidence, the President and every member of his official family have it to overflowing, not only in public but among themselves. They are not assuming it, as all politicians do at times as a part of their campaign business, but they absolutely have it, and if the President is not re-elected, they will be about as greatly surprised a lot of men as this country ever saw. About a month or six weeks ago, they had doubts but they have none now about the Presidency, although they are still dubious about the majority in the next House, and somewhat afraid that it will be captured by the Democrats.

Notice.

United States Land Office,
Salt Lake City, Utah,
October 15, 1900.

To whom it may concern:

Notice is hereby given that the State of Utah has filed in this office a list, No. 26, of lands selected by the said State for the establishment and maintenance of a Normal School, under section 12, of the Act of Congress approved July 16, 1894. The following tracts embraced in said list, are in a township containing mineral claim of record, viz: The NE 1/4, NW 1/4, section 34, Township 8 N., Range 6 E., S. 1, Mer.

A copy of said list, so far as it relates to said tracts, by descriptive subdivisions, has been complementarily placed in this office, for inspection by any person interested, and by the public generally.

During the sixty days next following the date of this notice, under departmental instruction of November 27, 1899, (23 L. D. 489), protests or contests against the claim of the State to any of the tracts of subdivisions hereinafter described, on the ground that the same are more valuable for mineral than for agriculture purposes will be received and noted for report to the General Land Office, at Washington, D. C. Failure to protest or contest within the time specified will be considered sufficient evidence of the nonmineral character of the tracts, and the selections thereof, being otherwise free from objection, will be recommended for approval.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. E. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ogden, N. Y. "She was disappointed and waited to know what cough preparation I could recommend. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not feel it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by John Boyden & Son.

A Denver genius is remodeling "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He will have Eliza cross the frozen river on a wheel and keep the dogs back with an ammonia blue-gun. She will wear bloomers and carry her borrowed and in the hip pocket.—Postscript.

Summons.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF Summit County, State of Utah.—Maurice Fitzgerald, plaintiff, vs. May Fitzgerald, defendant.—Summons. The State of Utah, to the said defendant: You are hereby summoned to appear within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, if served within the county in which this action is brought, otherwise, within thirty days after service, and defend the above entitled action; and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you according to the demand of the complaint, of which a copy is herewith served upon you, which, within ten days after service of summons upon you, will be filed with the clerk of said court.

A loquacious gentleman tells the following history in explanation of how the term maverick originated: "Gus Maverick," says he, "was a young lawyer who went to Texas before the State had won her independence from the Mexicans. He came from Pendleton, Georgia, and his father, Sam Maverick, was one of the wealthiest planters in his time. When Texas entered the Union, Gus owned some land and cattle that he could handle. He rounded up a mixed bunch of cattle and put them on a large island in a river, never afterward paying any attention to them; but they increased enormously. As they were not branded the free and easy men of these parts felt at liberty to pick up a critter now and then, and in local parlance an unbranded cow came to be known as a maverick. This term spread, and to this day, anywhere on the range, stray cowboys and calves not branded are called mavericks, and the man who finds them is a hard put to his own brand on them and keeps them."—Ex.

Notice.

The undersigned, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of Summit County, Utah, hereby gives notice that sealed bids for the construction of a wagon bridge across the Weber river at a point near George Wilde's ranch in Weber canyon, Summit county, Utah, will be received at the Court House in Coalville, Summit county, Utah, until November 30, 1900.
